

ALLIED LINE
MOVES BACK
FROM YPRES

GERMAN WEDGE CARRIES FIVE MILES OF BATTLE FRONT ON RIVER AND CANAL
TODAY.

GERMANS WANT CALAIS

London Newspapers Characterize Move as Indication of Deterr-mination to Occupy City.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
London, April 24.—Over an arch-like front in Belgium Flanders, which is roughly ten miles long, from the region of Buxchaux in the north to St. Omer in the south, the allied troops were locked with the Germans today
in a series of engagements which recall the fighting of last October.
Driven from Hill No. 60 to the south of Ypres, and failing to take it
by a counter attack, the Germans launched a southern advance northeast of Ypres and after stupefying men and killing them with deadly gases in the trenches, according to British reports, they drove a wedge of infantry forward, forcing the French and Belgians back toward and at some points apparently across the Yser and Ypres canal, a maneuver which at the same time compelled the British line north of Ypres to fall back to conform with the French.

Although the advance of the Germans was considerable, extending, according to Berlin dispatches, over a front of five miles, French, Belgian and British forces, the French occupying the center, the Belgians on the left, and the British the right of the line, immediately initiated a counter attack, the result of which was to compel the Germans to give up some of the ground they had gained. The force then in a northeasterly direction toward Langemark, from which place the attack started.

Some of the London newspapers today characterize this German rush as another attempt to break through to Calais, and some estimates say they have lost a hundred thousand men
available for this effort.

Asphyxiating Bombs
Paris, April 24.—The asphyxiating bombs used by the Germans in their attack on Ypres were thrown at numerous points along a front of five miles, according to information that has been brought to Paris. The contents of these missiles was largely chlorine mixed with other chemicals.

The Germans were blowing from them in the direction of the French trenches. The fumes caused uncomfortable breathing and the smarting of the eyes for distance of nearly two miles behind the trenches, and they were so powerful that the Germans had to wait themselves a considerable time before they could occupy the evacuated trench.

During this delay the French troops recovered, and delivered a counter attack and regained most of the ground lost. The German supply of chlorine bombs had apparently been used up in the first advance. They had no more to throw and they gave way before the resolute bayonet attack of the French. The bombs, however, were thrown by means of hand-ling
such as boys use for throwing stones.

Wireless Dispatch
Berlin, wireless to Sayville, April 24.—German headquarters today say:
"Attempts made by the enemy to reconquer lost Terrain, to the north and northeast of Ypres, failed. The French and British attacks broke down the German line. The number of prisoners—French and English and Belgian—rose to 2,470.
The pieces of cannon captured up to the present total 35. An additional large number of machine guns and rifles and much ammunition and other war material were taken by the Germans. West of the Ypres canal the Germans stormed the town of Izere, in the Champagne region. Germans blasted an enemy trench. Near Caussepoix the French shelled their own trenches with artillery.

"Between the Meuse and the Moselle French attacks failed. The German line was broken. The German trenches were ejected.
"In the forest of La Pretre the Germans made progress.

French Report
Paris, April 24.—The war department today says:
"Supplementary reports furnish further particulars of the way the Germans succeeded in forcing our lines back on Thursday evening and on the north of Ypres, between the Yser canal and the Bael Capelle road. Thick yellow smoke came from the German trenches, and drove the allied troops back. The wind produced an effect of asphyxiation among our troops, which was felt even in our second line positions.

"Counter attacks made yesterday already have enabled us to regain part of the ground lost. Our situation has been completely consolidated and our line is being carried out under good conditions with support of the British and Belgian troops. The enemy made an attack at Lwischend, and another at Lwischend, in the forest of Apremont, both of which were repulsed."

Aeroplanes Busy
Paris, April 24.—Allied aeroplanes are showing great activity over Smyna, says a special dispatch from Saloniki. French aviators recently dropped two bombs on Fort Castro, killing several soldiers, and another sank a German ship in the port and another struck the railroad station.

Observations made by aviators, according to a dispatch, indicate that the Turkish forces assigned for the defense of Smyrna number 35,000.

Not
London, April 24.—The war office today gave out the following official note:
"The fight for the ground into which the Germans penetrated between Steenstaete and Langemark still continues. The loss of this part of the line laid bare the left of the Canadian division, which was forced to fall back in order to keep in touch with the right of the neighboring troops.

"In the rear of the latter had been

Ruins of Neuve Chapelle from one of the trenches.

In this spot, where the beautiful town of Neuve Chapelle once stood, occurred some of the most severe fighting in the war thus far. As the picture shows, the town was utterly destroyed. The British lines are now far advanced beyond this point and the bloody trenches are deserted.

War News Summary.

The new battle in Belgium which has developed suddenly into one of the most important encounters in the west since the present battle line was formed, is being carried on by a relentless German attack and a determined resistance on the part of the British. It is now apparent that the Germans have brought up heavy reinforcements for this work.

Victims of the allies operating over a different front from Berlin, the defending the city with 35,000 troops established in trenches.

A series of German successes along the western front is announced in today's official report from Berlin. It said attempts of the allies to recapture the ground lost in Belgium have failed and French and British attacks broke down under German fire.

The French war office report gives a different version of the situation in Belgium. From this statement it would appear that the German advance had been halted. The allies have recaptured part of the lost ground, it is said.

The advance of the Germans is ascribed by the French war office to the use of bombs developing deadly gases.

Four Canadian 4.7 guns which passed into the hands of the enemy.
But some hours later the Canadians
made a most brilliant and successful advance, recapturing these guns and taking a considerable number of German prisoners, including a colonel.

The Canadians had many casualties, but their gallantry and determination undoubtedly saved the situation. Their conduct has been magnificent throughout.

Lawrence Students
FAVOR "TIPPERARY"

British Song Is Better Than "On Wis-

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Appleton, April 24.—The question as to whether "Tipperary" was a better marching song than "On Wisconsin" was settled here last night in favor of the British song when 100 Lawrence students parading the streets with drums and song, celebrated an interluncheon and determined to sing both songs.

The students were requested to sing both songs while passing down College Avenue.

that the war will not soon come to an end.

This Austrian commander, who has been active in defending the Carpathian passes against the Russians, expressed this opinion to Major Tanner of the Swiss army, who is his correspondent. The Basel Nachrichten.

He declared that the war would

TRIAL OF CHARLTON
IS DELAYED AGAIN

American Who Was Arrested for Murdering His Wife Five Years Ago Will Have More
Time to Prepare Defense.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Paris, April 24.—Although July next will mark the elapse of five years since Porter Charlton was arrested on the charge of murdering
his wife in Italy, the case, it is learned, will not come to trial before autumn, if by then.

His counsel, Advocate Catapano, recently discussing the present delay, said:
"There are two reasons for the delay, the examination of the witnesses in America, and the observations which are being taken of the prisoners' mental condition at the asylum
for the insane at Combe."

"As Charlton had not the means to bring over any of his witnesses for the trial they all had to have their testimony taken at home, which was a complicated process, conducted through the Departments of Justice and Foreign Affairs both Italian and American. If that had not been done there would have been the probability of his being judged at the defense present."

"Instead, the testimony of the fourteen witnesses in the United States will be read, the testimony being of great importance, given the defense assumed, which is the total irresponsibility of the accused. The investigations cannot be closed and therefore be made public until the experiments to establish whether Charlton is insane have been given in May. Thus in June, or at the latest in July, the decision will be given out, so that the trial can come on in the early autumn."

Advocate Catapano, however, said that this was not at all sure, as should Italy
be at the trial would scarcely take place.

"You see," he continued, "Come to a frontier town, and in case of war
the Courts of Justice will be upset. Charlton and his case will not shown any great concern. He seems to be resigned to his position and thinks he will ultimately be released, meanwhile he is allowed all the physical exercises which he is so greatly attached, that he desires."

"To the question why Charlton had taken his case out of the hands of Deputy Porzio, Advocate Catapano replied: "It cannot be said that the case has been taken from him, the Deputy is very much occupied and interested in his case, as he could not devote sufficient time to it and it is quite possible that he may deliver the final harangue. It has been said that the Charlton family were much disturbed at the time wasted over the time-taking of the testimony in America, and that Deputy Porzio, as a member of Parliament, did not burry up matters as he might have done,
but this is not so, as the fault lies entirely in our procedure, an enormous fault when one considers that it took almost a year to conclude the first normal legal inquiries."

The counsel for the defense will be two, Advocate Cattaneo of Como
and myself, Advocate Palmieri of
New York, who is cognizant of everything, will come to Italy for the trial.
The counsel for the prosecution will
be two, Advocate Cattaneo of Como
and myself, Advocate Palmieri of
New York, who is cognizant of everything, will come to Italy for the trial.

Immediately after the trial, which the murder took place, will be heard, so that time will only be consumed hearing the witness Captain Scott, brother of the victim, and in the discussion of the experts on sanity and in my address to the jury."

WAS NOT IN CANADA LONG

Appleton, April 24.—Because George Weiner, a local German resident, and only taken out of his first naturalization papers, he was deported back here from Canada. Last week he left for Canada to work, but was placed under arrest awaiting an investigation.
When it was found that he had not taken out his second papers, he was thought he would make a better Ger-

SWOBODA ADMITS HE IS GERMAN SUBJECT

Man Accused of Espionage Has Gone
Under Assumed Name—Real
Name Is Schwind.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Paris, April 24.—Raymond Ruf Schwind, who has gone under the name of Raymond Swoboda, now admits he is a German subject, according to the Matin. The inquiry conducted by Major Julien of the Paris permanent court martial, has revealed that Schwind was sentenced at Shanghai several years ago by the German consular court to two years' imprisonment. He is said to have been transferred to Germany where he served his sentence. The Matin asserts that Schwind was unable to deny
he had been in prison.

Schwind, who claimed to be an American citizen, was arrested on suspicion and being responsible for a fire
aboard the steamship La Touraine, but this charge against him has been dropped although he is still accused of espionage by military authorities.

LEGISLATURE USES
AXE ON BILLS IN A
TWO HOURS' SESSION

One Blow of the Axe Kills Thirteen Bills—Busy Night Meeting in Both Houses.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., April 24.—In a two hours' session last night the assembly
went through its Friday and Saturday calendars, slaughtering more bills than in any previous day's session of this legislature. At one blow it killed thirteen bills, chief among which was the measure bill limiting the speed of automobiles, and a half dozen related to fish and game. There was a long debate over the Donnelly bill to prohibit the sale of stove polish containing benzine, but it was finally killed.

In the Assembly,
The assembly passed the Kellogg
bill increasing the standard weight of apples from 50 to 54 pounds per bushel; the Martin bill giving police commissioners police powers in the city of Milwaukee; and the Rosshard bill prohibiting false statements of assets by insurance corporations. It passed the Neumeister bill validating acts of the Sheboygan water commissioner; the Doble bill to permit the sale of cigarettes to adults but forbidding their sale to minors; and the Hart
bill relating to fraudulent advertisements for help to supplant strikers.

Kill Nelson Bill.
After long debate the house sent to engrossment the Budlong bill requiring the same passenger fares between two points on the same railroad, killing the Nelson bill repealing the eugenics marriage law; the Helm bill giving municipalities power to regulate Sunday closing. It laid over at next Tuesday the Weber bill appropriating $20,000 for the establishment of a hospital for incurables;
killed the Metcalfe resolution to amend the constitution so that law
may not be declared unconstitutional except by a unanimous vote of the supreme court.

Adjourn to Monday.
Assemblyman Vint offered a substitute to his bill to give the city of Milwaukee power to regulate public utilities. It will be taken up next Tuesday. The Minkley bill to require reclaiming and repapering of rooms to prevent contagious disease was engrossed. There was a long debate over the Nelson bill to repeal the 1913 law giving the railroad commissioner power to allow municipal plants
to issue certificates of indebtedness for improvements. Assemblyman Nelson sought to repeal this law on the ground that the commission should not have the power. The bill was opposed by Speaker Whitte and was
finally killed.

Such houses have adjourned until Monday night at 8:45 p. m.

THAW DISAPPOINTED;
TRIAL IS POSTPONED

Fugitive Must Await Decision of Appellate Division of Supreme Court
Before Hearing Is Granted.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
New York, April 24.—Harry K.
Thaw, who went to sleep in the Tomb prison last night, elated by his belief that he had won his long fight
for a jury trial to test his sanity, awoke today to learn that he must wait for a decision of the appellate division of the supreme court before such a hearing would be granted.

This new check in his attempt to obtain his freedom from the Tomb prison, to which Justice
Page has ordered his return, was due to the announcement by Attorney General Woodbury that the state would make application to the appellate court for a writ of prohibition against the order for a jury trial granted yesterday by Justice Hendrick.

HOREN TRIAL WILL BEGIN AT MAY TERM

Bondsmen Withdraw Surety and Alleged Murderer Is in Jail—Unwritten Law Is Horen's Plea.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Marquette, April 24.—The trial of Joseph Horen, alleged contractor, charged with the murder of Morry Porter, conductor on the Milwaukee road, will begin at the May term, which convenes on May 3rd. Horen is now in jail awaiting trial, as his bondsmen have withdrawn from his surety of $10,000 after he had been at liberty for some time. Horen will allege that Porter was at his home the night he shot him. The crime was committed in the woods west of Wausaukee. Porter was shot as he was leaving Horen's home, the bullet taking effect in his arm and he died from loss of blood while being taken

SECRETARY OF STATE SPEAKS ON "RULES FOR THE NEW VOTERS" TODAY.

PUBLICITY ESSENTIAL

Duty of Each Citizen to Exert Himself to Reform Every Abuse of Government and the Evil.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Baltimore, Md., April 24.—Publicity is as essential to honest administration of the government, as is freedom of speech to representatives of government. Secretary of State Bryan told members of the city club today.
"The government began the people's business," he said. "It necessarily follows that its operations should be at all times open to the public view."
"Governmental approval of the secretary declared, "in so far as assert with justice the joint burdens which it is imposed on them to distribute with equity the incidental benefits which come from the disbursement of the money raised by taxation."

Secretary Bryan spoke on "rules for the new voter," but he also discussed the duty of every citizen,
which he said was to "exert himself
to the utmost to reform every abuse of government and to eradicate every

PICKING JIM COFFEY TO DEFEAT WILLARD

New York Boxing Fans See Dublin Giant as Victor Over the New Champion if Bonut is Granted.

New York, April 24.—Boxing in Gotham since the victory of Willard has turned largely to the heavyweight division, and Jim Coffey, the Dublin giant, is the favorite of New York. Coffey has become popular because he has never lost a fight. The crowd is always with a winner, of course, and there are those who think that James is the only fellow who stands a chance with the heavyweights. There isn't a sportively inclined motorman, policeman, or fireman who is not anxious to take a day off when Coffey fights. They swear by him. They declare him to be the greatest ever, and in him they believe they see the next champion. It's dollars to doughnuts that if Jess Willard was fighting in one building and Coffey in one across the way from Jim, would get the lion's share of patronage in New York.

Coffey is entitled to whatever he has gained in the way of friends and money. He has been a most earnest young man in his toil to reach the top of his profession. Early defeats did not discourage him. He took many a neat beating in his early glove days, but he kept going until he became quite a master. He has met some who were regarded as clever and learned some tricks. He met the heavy punches, and from them got on to the knock out, dealing out a healthy wallop himself. Coffey has been pretty well through the mill.

Women's Golf Tourney. Philadelphia, April 24.—Philadelphia women golfers today held their annual championship tournament over the links of the Philadelphia Cricket Club. Several will enter in the eastern women's championship tournament next month at the Merion Club.

It is generally taken for granted when a fellow has been in the big show for years and then his brother breaks in, that No. 1 must be much the older of the two—therefore, everybody thinks Schang of the Pirates is the kid brother and Schang of the Athletics the senior. Fact is that the younger one grew famous first, and that the newer recruit is four years older than the Mackman.

FOURNIER'S BATTING WINS GAME FOR WHITE SOX 4-3

Chicago, April 24.—The White Sox won their second straight game from the Browns yesterday when Jacques Fournier pounded out a pair of triples in three times at bat, and the wallpops counted in the run making. Fournier told Rowland before the game he would deliver if allowed to play the outfield position, and the happy Frenchman made good his word.

Grover Loudermilk, who handed the Sox one trimming, heaved for the Browns and was opposed by Cicotte. Wolfigang replaced the butcher boy when Chappell broke into the game in the sixth to bat. In the first with busted his first from a walk, Fournier tried to stretch the hit into a homer. The Browns counted two up to the seventh, with the Sox lagging behind with one tally. In the lucky inning Collings drew a pass and Fournier repeated with a triple and Collins scored.

scored. Jack Collins doubled and scored on Erie's fly. Schalk doubled, and in all three scores counted in the inning. In the ninth Eddie Collins made a circus stop of a line drive that saved the game for Chicago.

Cubs Win 8-5. St. Louis, April 24.—Hits by Good and Fisher put a victory for the Cubs over the St. Louis Nationals 8 to 5 yesterday. Pierce started for the Cubs but was chased when the Cardinal's runs started and Vaugie saved the game. Niehaus and Griner pitched for St. Louis.

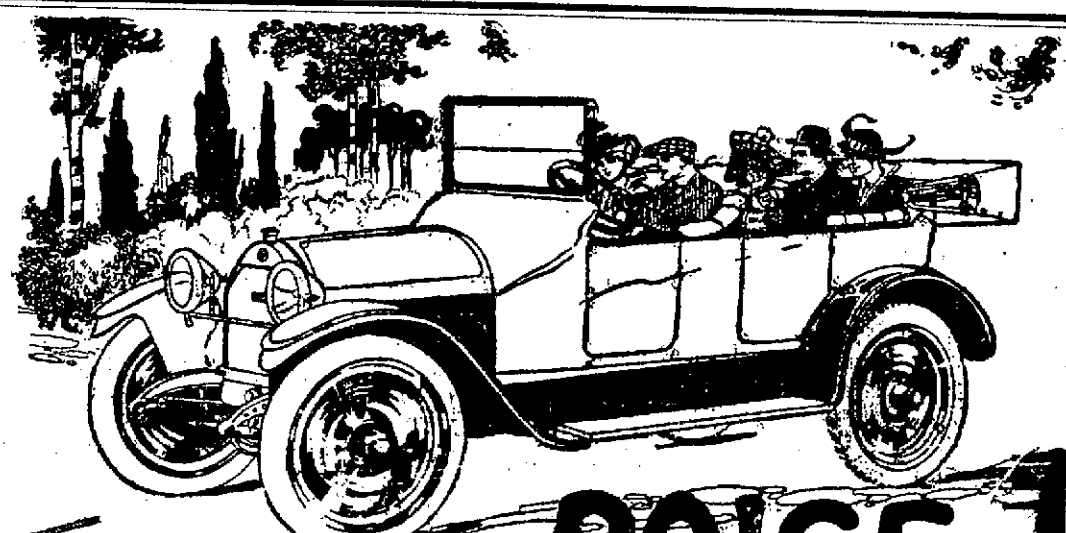

Phillies Win Again. Philadelphia, April 24.—Two doubles and a single in the second inning brought victory to the Philadelphia Nationals, who made it eight straight victories by beating the champion Braves 2 to 1. Rixey held the Braves scoreless until the ninth, when Maranville counted on a double and a single. Rudolph allowed the climbing Phillies seven hits.

Securing a second baseman to replace Molarry is worrying the management of the Louisville club. Burns, Burch, Buseniller and Ingerton have been given their liberty. Derrick, Stansbury, Platte and Osborne came back.

Utah has developed another high jumper of merit named Larcen, who may enter Armour Tech in Chicago. Competing for Brigham Young High school he has cleared 8 feet 2 inches and is said to have done 6 feet 1 1/2 inches on a muddy field. Larcen is that he is only five feet seven inches tall and weighs 130 pounds. Alma Richards, the Olympic champion and a former Brigham Young student, who is now at Cornell, predicts that Larcen is the coming champion.

Johnny Griffiths, Akron lightweight, has been matched to meet Joe Mandot in an eight-round bout at Memphis, Tenn., May 17. Griffiths and Mandot boxed at Windsor more than a year ago, and the Detroit papers divided on the result, some awarding the edge to the Akron boy and others giving it to Mandot.

Mike Gonzales has improved greatly over last year's form. He is now a seasoned and competent backstop and can go with any Red pitcher and give a good account of himself. His arm is very strong and accurate and he uses good judgment in handling his wing.

PAIGE

"The Standard of Value and Quality"

In Paige Cars You Will Find Real Economy

Real economy in motor cars is vastly more than a mere matter of tire mileage and low gasoline consumption.

Practically any car of light, "flimsy" construction will make a creditable showing so far as its tires and carburetion are concerned. But Repair Bills and Depreciation may tell quite a different story. And these—after all is said and done—are the items of upkeep which stamp your car as an Economy or an extravagant Luxury.

If you have seen the new Paige Six "46", you can readily understand why the item of Depreciation on this car is bound to be a small one. This car is one year ahead of the field. It is not an old model "dolled" up with a fictitious 1915 label and a fictitious price. It is refreshingly new in lines, design and equipment. It belongs to no "school" for it is rapidly establishing a school of its own—the School of 1916.

"The year ahead car"—that's what they call the Paige "Six." And if you are really interested in economy, that is the car you will want to buy.

Economy in the Paige "Six-46" Economy in the Paige "Four-36"

$1395

$1075

The Paige Continental 3 1/2 x 5 1/2 motor is undoubtedly the most efficient power plant that can be found in the light Six class to-day. This motor possesses a world of power and "snap", but—in combination with the celebrated Rayfield carburetor—it reduces gasoline and oil consumption to a minimum.

Then, the Paige Six weighs only 3100 pounds ready for the road. Resilient cantilever springs insure that marvel of easy riding, and with scientific weight distribution—there is no unnecessary wear and tear on tires.

So, mechanically, the Paige Six owner can depend upon substantial savings in gasoline, oil, tire and general repair bills. And—most important of all—he knows that his car will suffer less depreciation than any other light Six on the American market. This, because of Paige Design—"year ahead" Design.

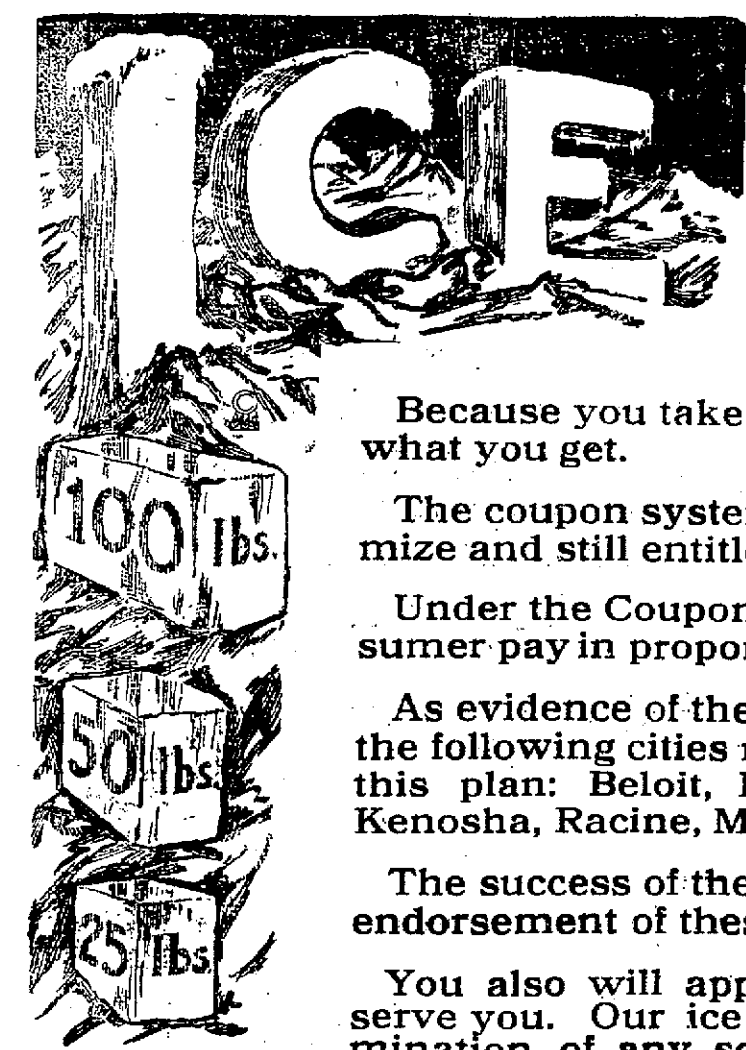

All Paige cars are equipped with the Gray & Davis starting and lighting system—the unexcelled Bosch magneto—and a multiple disc clutch with cork inserts. No better features appear on any car—at any price.

It seems almost absurd to put forward arguments for the Economy and general Efficiency of this world-famous Glenwood Four "36" Model. You know the record that this car has made and consistently maintains. You know how it is regarded wherever automobiles are owned or discussed. But here is just one more proof—one more endorsement of men who are qualified to judge motor car values. The Rochester Railway and Light Company of Rochester, N. Y., have just concluded an exhaustive Efficiency and Economy test with practically every medium and low-priced car on the market. These men are experienced—they have employed fleets of motor cars for years, so there is real significance in the order that they have just placed with the Paige agent at Rochester for Eight four-cylinder "Glenwoods" and one Six "46".

Reliability, Service, Economy of Maintenance—these were the features of Paige cars which induced the Rochester Railway and Light Company to place such a large order.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

Standing at an open door leading to a porch, the diminutive figure of a man was noticed. Twenty feet away, he looked more elf and gnome than human being. He was gazing into the sunlight and one could almost see a wistful, yearning expression in his eyes. Approaching nearer it was not until he had been fully within the light that the man's face was almost gone and his face was a mass of red-ash-blue scars. His eyes, however, sparkled clearly. He had, however, but instead, pendant from the wrists were small cat-like claws, scant remnants of his bread-baking equipment. He was Harry J. Ryan, engineer employed by the Grand Trunk railroad in the late '80s. On June 29, 1880, near Emmett, Mich., Engineer Ryan, running a fast mail sixty miles an hour, ran into a siding because of a mistake by a switchman. His fireman jumped from the cab and, as he came back with the coal, he was struck by the engine. Ryan shut off the throttle, put on the emergency brake and stayed with his engine.

"It was a day like this," remarked Ryan, "it was clear and balmy and we were riding her up at over a mile a minute. The switch was thrown until we were fairly onto the siding. Then my fireman shrieked at me and began to climb over the coal. I had a fast mail behind me with a number of passenger cars. I did everything I could to stop the rush of the engine. The left rails, bumped over the ties, broke loose from the coaches, went down the bank, leaped over a culvert and struck another culvert, springing into the air about twenty feet and falling over on her side."

"Where were you, Mr. Ryan?" "I was still in the cab," he answered simply. "Luckily, only one steam valve broke off but the vapor from it struck me fairly between the eyes. I don't know how I managed to, but finally I crawled out from under the locomotive and was taken to a hospital."

"You were almost scalded to death, were you not?" "Yes, sir. I was in the hospital for a long time."

"You were rewarded, of course, by the railroad company?" "I never got a cent from them."

"Nothing? Nothing as a reward for sticking to your duty?" "The little, old man looked up shyly and there was a light of joy in his eyes. He said he had something. It was a medal, he explained."

"You do not wear your medal?" "I always have it with me," Ryan rejoined. "Unbutton my vest he requested. This being done he pointed to an inside pocket in which was a Morocco leather wallet. His visitor took this from its resting place and opened it. There shone a gold medal with pendant decorated with diamonds. A miniature locomotive was engraved on the upper portion and words of appreciation of Ryan's heroism. It was indicated that this medal had been presented by the passengers whom he had saved."

This pathetic story of heroism, and suffering comes from one of the inmates of the home for aged and disabled railroad employees, located at Highland Park, twenty miles north of Chicago.

months from January 1, 1915, and a verdict will be rendered before the first of May. The question at issue is more pay for the engineers and firemen, and better working conditions, and the Brotherhood put up a strong case for their side of the question.

The railroads were equally persistent, claiming that the men were well paid and that the companies were in no condition to consider an advance in wages. The decision of the Board of Arbitration will be of interest.

Warren S. Stone, head of the Brotherhood of Engineers, made the closing argument for the men, and suggested that the board visit the Veterans' Home at Highland Park and study the "human wreckage" at close range. Mr. Ryan, whose experience introduced this story, was one of the object lessons encountered.

The accident which cost Mr. Ryan so dearly, happened twenty-five years ago, and is forgotten history except to the sufferer, and his immediate circle of friends and relatives. It is none the less serious, however, and the question of restitution is as perplexing today as it has ever been.

For many years the value of human life was fixed by the railroads at $5,000, until finally the courts decided that some lives represented a greater financial value than others, and now the standard of value is flexible.

But money does not pay for permanent disability, and human sympathy is so closely allied to human wreckage that it ought to figure largely in the question of award. The most that can be done for this class of victims, is to make them comfortable for life, and provide for their dependents, and simple justice demands that this should be done.

The question has often been discussed. Who is responsible for the safety of the train—the man in the cab, or the conductor? The latter is clothed with authority. He is the man who gives orders and directs movements, but how about emergency cases?

The man in the cab, with his hand on the throttle, is the one and only man in control, when the train is in motion, and the safety of human life often depends on his courage and quick judgment when danger is confronted.

It is said that the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers is the most intelligent and the most loyal of any of the great labor organizations. Mr. Ryan only once saw many brave men, who have been maimed for life because they felt responsible for the safety of human life. It is an old saying that self-preservation is the first law of nature, but this is not a part of the engineers' creed.

Have you ever noticed one of these old engineers as he "climbed down" from the cab at the end of a long run? He is covered with grime and dust and weary from the long hours of service, but while you sleep peacefully, back in the Pullman, he peered into the night, watching the rails ahead and the danger signals, while making time at a sixty mile clip.

Colonel Roosevelt was always a friend to the man in the cab, and seldom left a train without walking down the platform to the engine and grasping the hand of the engineer, with a compliment or a word of good cheer.

This kind of recognition, which is all too rare, is always appreciated. The man behind the gun is not always a conspicuous figure, but he has a heart which responds to the touch of human sympathy.

One of the old engineers, whose run for many years was out of Janesville, in the passenger service, was pensioned and retired, when he reached the age limit, and he died ten years before his time through inactivity and mourning.

It was a pathetic sight to watch the veteran as he strolled up and down the platform, day after day, when his old train came in, and to note the pride with which he regarded the old engine which had responded to his demands for so many years.

This class of faithful old servants is found in every railroad town. They are the part of the human wreckage which is paying the penalty for growing old, but while many faculties are impaired, the heart is still young, and visions of active life, when they pulled the fast express through the night, at sixty miles an hour, often come back to them as a pleasant memory.

There will come a time, in the brighter light of a better civilization, when the aged throngs which enter into the fabric of our industrial life, will be straightened out, and when human wreckage and capital as well, will receive the just consideration to which they are entitled.

The trouble with most plans is that they won't work.

Some Livestock. Speaking of cows, Bro. Gibson, a Michigan boomer, believes in the dairying possibilities and hog raising future of the Wolverine state.

"Why," says John, "we have in our section eleven cheese factories and 100 creameries. It is impossible to describe the grand future of our dairying interests. If all the cows in our state could be put into one cow she would graze on the equator while with her tail she could swing the icicles off the north pole. If all our hogs were turned into one hog he could dig the Panama canal with three roots and one grunt."

Odes to a Jitney Bus. "Mother, may I go out to ride?" "Said pretty Mabel, Hittney." "Take a jitney car," her mother replied.

"But don't go near a jitney."

Hark, hark, the dogs do bark. The jitney comes to town. Some are maddened and some are scared. And some are broken down.

An Intelligent Child.

A large map was spread upon the wall and the teacher was instructing the class in geography.

"Horace," said she to a small pupil, "when you stand in Europe facing the north you have your right hand the great continent of Asia."

"What have you one your left hand?" "A wart," replied Horace, "but I can't help it, teacher."

Who Thought It Would Come to This.

The latest song hit! "I Did Not Buy My Ford to Be a Jitney." Here it is: I didn't buy my Ford to be a jitney; I bought it just to be my pride and joy.

Who dares to place a sign upon its "A Jitney for a ride from town to field."

Let other auto owners run their old machines, My Ford is for my own and private use.

There would be no jitney bus today if owners all would say: "I didn't buy my Ford to be a jitney."

Certainly.

WOULD PLACE GUNS IN EXCAVATIONS IN RUINS OF BABYLON.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] London, April 24.—Ancient Babylon as a fortified point for the British expedition against Turkey, with the guns placed behind the German archaeological excavations, is the suggestion made by a correspondent of the Near East, who is well acquainted with the excavating work the Germans have done there.

Since 1890, the German archeologists have employed an average of 300 men to dig among the ruins. The extent of this work is indicated by the fact they used a small railway to carry away the earth as it was taken out.

Babylon could make a fortified place of great strength, argues the writer. The surroundings are flat, yet covered with a network of embankments at ancient canals, and the German diggings, vast in extent, offer ideal shelter and excellent gun pits.

Youth Who Tried to Enlist Three Times Is Under Weight—Physician Advises Him.

Alexandria, Ind.—Paul Hogle, a high school pupil, who has had ambitions to join the United States army, returned from Indianapolis, where he made his third unsuccessful attempt to enlist under the Stars and Stripes. At Muncie the young man was informed six months ago that he was not old enough. When he tried to join the army at the Anderson recruiting station his parents objected. A few days ago he slipped away to Indianapolis. Everything went along fine until it came to the question of weight. He was five pounds under the prescribed weight. He has been advised by a local physician to confine his diet to beans to take on extra weight.

Arrested for Begging, New Jersey Woman Denies She's Too Old to Work.

Atlantic City, N. J.—"I had to beg. They all said I was too old to work, but I'm not," said Mrs. Edna Sheppard when arraigned before Recorder Gaskill on the charge of seeking alms on the streets.

"Well, you don't look exactly like a spring chicken. Just what is your age?" inquired the court.

"None of your freshness, young man. I'm only ninety-eight and I'm not ashamed to tell it either," was the reply.

"Prisoner discharged," was the verdict, after investigation had shown Mrs. Sheppard really was within two years of the century mark.

The Kilt in History.

The Scottish kilt, as an article of dress, dates back to historic times, and was originally, so far as can be figured out, merely a plaid blanket worn about the shoulders with one end gathered about the loins in cold weather. The mountaineers of the Balkans wear the kilt, and students say that the soldiers of the Assyrian kings wore a costume very closely akin to the kilt of Scotland.

Foods like nuts, or rice or wheat, grains, must not be chewed but must be crushed or ground finely. Have you ever seen an old mill where wheat or corn is ground into flour between heavy stones which work with a circular motion? The millers are the grindstones of the mouth. At the same time that the millers are grinding up the food, the saliva mixes with it and a soft pulp is formed, ready for swallowing. All kinds of food must be broken up and thoroughly saturated with saliva before being passed on to the stomach. ## PASSED BY COUNCIL

COMMISSION DECIDES BRICK FOR MILTON AVE. AND CONCRETE FOR FRANKLIN ST.

STREET POLE HEARING

City Commission Makes It Plain That Anti-Pole Ordinance Will Be Passed if City Gets Lighting System.

Resolutions for permanent paving on Milton avenue and on South Franklin street were passed by the city council at their afternoon meeting held yesterday afternoon. The council unanimously voting for a three-foot brick pavement on Milton avenue north to the intersection of Franklin street and for concrete on Franklin from Pleasant to Galena street.

The paving resolutions were introduced by Commissioner P. J. Goodman and were not subject to debate, the council having argued the paving question extensively and thoroughly at previous meetings. The twenty-three foot pavement on Milton avenue will be nearly a half mile in length and the brick will be laid on a concrete foundation, making a durable street extending nine feet from the car tracks. The remaining space will be constructed of the macadam, which will be oiled to form a shoulder of brick. At the public hearing held yesterday, the council declared that the brick pavement would not cost property owners more than one dollar per running foot, the city and the companies paving a large per cent of the construction cost. The resolution also called for a gutter work.

One Negative Vote.
The ordering of concrete pavement is the result of over a year's investigation for more permanent pavement type that will be less expensive when the cost of maintenance is considered, as compared to the initial construction cost. On South Franklin street, a concrete pavement, a nine-inch macadam filling, petitioned for by the property-owners, would cost between eighty and ninety cents per square yard, and concrete of the best quality could be obtained at a price better than $1.35 per square yard. The resolution introduced by Commissioner Goodman called for the construction of a concrete pavement on Franklin street to Galena, a distance of six blocks, and to be laid with Mayor Fathers and Councilman Goodman voting yes, and Councilman Roy Lummings no. This is the third dissenting vote that has been cast in the council since the commission form of government went into effect.

Much Paving Work.
The ordering of these two streets will make a total of over three miles of paving work to be done in Janesville this year and more will be planned for. On South Bluff and South Third streets, asphalt macadam is to be laid and it is expected paving work will be ordered on North Vista avenue, where property-owners have petitioned for plain macadam. That Janesville will obtain low prices for contract bids is certain for paving contractors have been submitting record low prices for work throughout the state. The lack of work, the reduced price and increased supply of labor have caused the contractors to bid low to obtain work. At Beloit the prices for paving on large jobs were amazingly low.

Pole Hearing.
Representatives of the companies affected by the proposed city ordinance to cause the removal of all telephones and power poles in the main street zone, appeared at the public hearing held after the council meeting and offered some objections to the ordinance. The final result of the hearing was to the effect that unless the new ornamental lighting system was installed, the ordinance will probably be dropped, there being no immediate necessity for its enforcement. It was pointed out clearly by the electric company that if the business men and churches would remove the electric light poles from the street, named in the zone, without an ordinance being passed, the company would not object to the ordinance if it could be enforced.

Report Adopted.
The annual report of City Treasurer George W. Muenchow, for the year ending April 15th, was accepted, and ordered published.

Mr. Bostwick had been ill but a few days, the disease rapidly sapping his strength, and since early morning it has been but a question of hours. He was a son of the late J. M. He had just passed his fiftieth birthday and leaves a widow and two daughters, brothers and sisters, and a sorrowing mother to mourn his loss.

Mr. Bostwick's death will come as a shock to the community as the seriousness of his illness was not known outside his immediate circle of acquaintances and family.

WOMEN COUNCIL HIGH

SCORES AT BOWLING

Mrs. Glen Hughes Holds High Mark At Y. M. C. A. Alleys With 153—Other Record Games.

It would take a crack bowling team of women from any other city to beat the act of running the ball straight on and toward the head pin, but to look today at some of the record games rolled by the women, it is surprising to find games with totals as high as 131, 123, 141 and 142.

Starting early last fall, a dozen women, accompanied by the husbands or gentlemen friends, who are members of the association, commenced to bowl, with hopes of finding amusement at this game. It took several months for some of them to acquire the act of running the ball straight on and toward the head pin, but to look today at some of the record games rolled by the women, it is surprising to find games with totals as high as 131, 123, 141 and 142.

Mrs. Hughes has secured second place with 141, while Misses S. S. Solie and V. Beera rolled 142 and 141.

Mrs. Albert Huebel is the only other bowler who has rolled better than 125, her game being 128.

It is hoped and believed that the interest in this activity will be stimulated again in the fall, with even higher marks registered by the ladies.

CHAMBORD ESTATES

TAKEN BY FRANCE

French Government Seizes Valuable Property Which Belonged to Austrian Royalty.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Blis, France, April 24.—Upon the demand of the district attorney of the court of the department of Loiret, the court has ordered the seizure of the Chambord chateau, the property of the Duke of Parma and his heirs, on the ground that it is the property of an Austrian subject. After the death of the Count of Chambord in 1833, the chateau and its contents were sold to the Duke of Parma and his heirs. The Duke of Parma is the oldest of these heirs.

The magnificent Chambord estates in the valley of the Loire contain 15,000 acres. The chateau is one of the finest palaces of France, and is now standing, having been started in 1539 by Francis I. After it remained a royal residence two centuries Louis Napoleon presented it to Marshal Bismarck, from whose widow it was purchased in 1821 by national subscription. A gift to the infant son of the Duke of Bordeaux, son of the heir apparent to the throne. As the representative of the older branch of the Bourbons, he afterward took from it the title of Count of Chambord.

Correspondent Writes Pen Picture of Emperor as He Saw Him at Front.

Berlin.—A pen picture of the Kaiser appears in the Kreuz-Zeitung from its war correspondent with the German troops in Poland, who says: "The Kaiser appeared with General Mackensen, and passed along in front of the officers and troops. I had not seen him since the time when at the beginning of the war he spoke to the crowd from the balcony of the castle in Berlin."

"For one moment I had formed the impression that he had become terribly gray in the campaign. That, however, was an error, which arose from the fact that his head protector, which he was wearing owing to the extremely cold weather, was gray."

"The supreme war lord appears, on the contrary, extraordinarily fresh and elastic, even though the seriousness of these last months has left marks on his features, and a certain bitterness which formerly was not present comes into his voice when he speaks."

"When I saw him I could not help thinking of the Kaiser parade in 1895 on the Spandau drill ground. How brilliant he then looked, how forceful, how confident in the future and victory!"

A visit to the residential section of the city found a general tendency on the part of many property owners to do the city clean-up work a little better and incidentally get the jump on them with the excellent weather.

Many Janesville school-age youngsters awoke this morning with vivid vision of a day's fishing or a baseball game during the morning or afternoon. In a great many homes, however, the vision was quickly clouded when Master Johnny came downstairs with the morning or afternoon announcements. Mother had something else for him to do.

SIDE LIGHTS on THE CIRCUS BUSINESS

By D. W. WATT

On Saturday evening last, April 17, the great Ringling Show opened the season of 1915 at the Coliseum, Chicago. Disputing the strike that was on in the city, the great building was crowded with people, and the show is said by people in the business to be one of the finest the Ringlings ever put out. The show will close its Chicago engagement on May 2nd inclusive, and then there will make a long run of 527 miles to Zanesville, Ohio, where they will give two performances, which will inaugurate the season's work of the one day stand.

Al Ringling has let the contract and work has already begun on his $100,000 one day house at the old home of the Ringlings in Baraboo, Wis., and while this may not be a profitable investment, it will serve for many years as the monument to the Ringling name and a credit to their home town.

In a letter from Charles E. Cory, of the Hagenbeck-Wallace show, Mr. Cory states that the show will open at the winter quarters home in Cincinnati, Ohio, on Saturday, April 24, and immediately start out on the one day stand. The show has been enlarged and rebuilt at an expense of more than $150,000 the past winter, and Mr. Cory states that in organizing the show for the coming year, no high class act has been turned down on account of the price, and that the show will go out the coming season bigger and better than ever before. This show for years has been among the high class aggregations of the country, and without doubt will have a prosperous season. The show will come west a little later and as Zanesville is on the list of good show towns, it may be possible that Zanesville will be considered in the tour.

Quite a number of showmen will leave Chicago on Saturday, April 24, to be at the opening of the Hagenbeck and Wallace show in Cincinnati, and will be headed by George B. Warren, president, and Warren A. Patrick, secretary of the Showmen's League of America.

In addition to being president of the Showmen's League of America, Mr. Warren has recently taken on added honors in bringing in being the Polka Folk's Thompson-for-Mayor club in Chicago, which is to be made a permanent political organization for amusement people.

Mr. B. Warren is a self-made man, and of great executive ability. His personality radiates sunshine and activity. He is widely known and his following is a loyal one. Charley never knocks at Mr. Warren's door in vain. With John B. Warren at the helm of its affairs, the Showmen's League of America will grow in strength and power, as time goes on, and the Show Folks' Political club should take on national dimensions.

Three baby lions at the Bostock Animal Gardens, at Main and Washington streets, in Los Angeles, California, were born to Mrs. Thomas R. Marshall, wife of the vice president of the United States. The names chosen by Mrs. Marshall were: Fran, the Scrapper, the Wilson, the Obstinat, and Marshall, the Gentle.

Down in his little neck of woods, Governor McDonald of New Mexico, likes to play the part of a petty tyrant, even though a lot of innocent and helpless animals must suffer and even though the humane laws of congress to protect these animals shall be violated in consequence. This is what happened. The Sells-Floto circus and Buffalo Bill shows pulled out of Denver Sunday afternoon, in two sections, enroute to San Bernardino, California, where they show opens next week. The trains were the handsomest and most sanitary and perfect that ever left Denver.

Everything was brand new; everything was spick and span and clean, new paint, new decorations. In fact, trains that would have caused the entire people of Colorado to rejoice could they have seen them wind their graceful ways to the south and west. All the employees had been vaccinated against typhoid, as well as smallpox. Every animal was in the pink of perfect condition, in order to avoid any complication with the quarantine laws against livestock. Every animal that could be infected by the foot and mouth disease, or which could even carry it, was left behind in winter quarters. This in accordance to the quarantine laws of a number of western states, one of which is New Mexico. The trains consisted of some fifty cars. There were about 550 men and women and 450 animals. For years the Sells-Floto show has been opening in Albuquerque, N. M., where it has many friends, and where it is regarded as a local Albuquerque organization. It was thought at first that arrangements might be made to give one show there, in passing through, as they were compelled to stop at Albuquerque to water and feed.

When the trains rolled into Albuquerque, Manager Hutchinson was met by officials from the governor, and was ordered to put out immediately; that not only would shows not be permitted to unload and rest the animals and feed and water, but he wanted the trains to move out without a moment's delay. This in accordance to the quarantine laws of the governor's emissaries that they were not violating any of the quarantine laws; that all of the animals were in perfect condition; and that they were carrying no animal that could even be infected with the foot and mouth disease; that he had a clean bill of health from the Colorado state veterinarian, Dr. Yard, and that according to the laws of congress, they had to stop and water and feed the animals. The governor and his hired men were obdurate and the governor's brutal and inhuman instructions had to be obeyed.

The Santa Fe railroad, over whose tracks the trip to California is being made, was so shocked at the governor's actions, that it coupled a number of water cars onto the show trains, in order that the animals might have at least something to drink and not starve from thirst on the long trip that had to be made, in order to get out of New Mexican territory, and into a saner and more humane state. It did not seem to matter to the governor that the one herd of elephants alone on the train was worth many thousands of dollars; and that the other trained animals were all equally valuable; for he had issued his command and it must be obeyed, right or wrong, even though the laws of congress had to be violated in order to carry out the governor's instructions. And so all day and all night the trains pounded on and on, until they crossed the New Mexican line and entered Arizona, where they were immediately unloaded and fed and watered and rested, and it is to be hoped that Governor McDonald is well satisfied with himself and his orders, which inflicted such unnecessary suffering upon 450 helpless animals.

In Paris or New York. "It appears, however, that counsels of reticence which are binding when dealing with the English press may be relaxed when the speaker is talking for publication abroad, with the result they are called back again to this country. This is at best an illogical and undignified state of affairs."

To Kill Limburger Scent. A Pennsylvania cheesemaker is authority for the statement that it is the outside of limburger cheese that smells objectionably—that if this part is cut off in chunks, sliced and given a few seconds' immersion in hot water the smell will be destroyed, leaving the taste unimpaired. The inside of the cheese, he says, needs no treatment.

A pleasing feature of "The Girl Question," one of the La Salle Musical Stock Company's excellent comedies, is the excellent harmony singing of the Chicago City Four. She is not injured, but is so berated by the stage manager, that she rushes out into the night in her fairy costume, and disappears. take up their vaudeville route. "The Girl Question," will be the attraction at the Myers Theatre Monday evening.

AT THE APOLLO.

Blanche Sweet in "The Warrens of Virginia." The Apollo announces for Monday matinee and night a special treat in the presentation of Blanche Sweet in Belasco's magnificent production, "The Warrens of Virginia."

"The Warrens of Virginia," by William C. De Mille, had its first production under the management of David Belasco, in association with whom Jesse L. Lasky now presents the play in picturized form. It is the story of the Civil War in the United States, aiming to show that the emotions of the great conflict were only political after all.

Miss Blanche Sweet, one of the foremost film stars in the world, makes her debut under the Lasky management in this production. Agatha Warren, the leading feminine character of the story, is the daughter of General Warren, a Virginia, a Mexican War veteran.

BLANCHE SWEET making her Lasky Debut in the Lasky-Belasco "The Warrens of Virginia."

Two of the intimates of the aristocratic Warren household are Ned Griffin, still in active army service, and formerly a brother officer of Warren in the page of the Mexican struggle. During the midst of a delightful entertainment a courier dashes up with the news that Fort Sumter has been fired on. This immediately divides the company into two camps—General Warren, son Arthur and the rest of his family representing the South, just as General Griffin and Burton stand for the North.

From this point the action lapses until a period within a few months of the end of the war, when the Northern army, under Grant, is finally making it way on Virginia soil and the Southern army is in the last stages of distress from insufficient supplies of every description. Five years after the war Ned and General Griffin come again to the Warren home. Then the romance has a happy conclusion.

AT THE APOLLO.

The Fairy and the Waif. The story of this Gustave Frohman production is sure to appeal to every person in the audience. The principal actors, Mary Miles Minter (known the country over as "The Littlest Rebel"), Percy Helton (the boy of "Peter Grimm" fame), and Will Archie (whom everyone knows), will delight the children with their pathos and humor, while the grown-ups will be gripped by the splendid acting and the interest of the plot, based upon events brought about by the sudden outbreak of the present European war, which is brief as follows:

Major Drayton, of the British Army, receives a cablegram which necessitates his return to London. As he will be gone but a few weeks, his lawyer suggests that he leave Viola in his care.

Viola is not happy in Lawyer Nevins' household, and is therefore dismayed when at the outbreak of the war abroad, her father writes that he has been ordered to the front. The news of Major Drayton's death causes the Nevins' attitude to change. A sum of money entrusted to Nevins for Viola's care has been lost by him in speculation, and Viola is looked upon as a burden and treated harshly, becoming the household drudge.

REAL MUSICAL PLAYS INSTEAD OF CABARET

Abbreviated Musical Comedies is the Latest Rage on Gotham's Lobster Palace.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

New York, April 24.—Tabloid, abbreviated musical comedy is the newest addition to menu of Gotham's lobster palace. Today the chefs are being backed off the menu card to a large extent by the footlight and Deltic Dimples. Of course, the bon ton cafes are still retained in action as places to eat, but the Cabaret craze has now gone a step farther and real musical comedy proved free for patrons.

The cafe musical comedy troupes are composed of really, truly actors and actresses (mostly of the feminine variety, however), and not one cabaret or vaudeville principals disguised as "artists." Some of the cafe troupes are offering dinners condensed musical comedies with as many as a dozen players in the cast, a real plot, and songs and costumes especially prepared for the dramatic vehicle. This puts those who have inaugurated it in the role of theatrical managers as well as restaurateurs.

The latest to adopt the musical comedy is the Wallack's, center of Times Square Jollity. There are comic operas (with food) at the Hotel McAlpin, the Claridge, San Souci, Bustanoby's and other popular resorts. The musical comedy vogue is said to be the natural development of the cabaret, in which it is expected the proprietors will reach farther than ever into the realm of the stage for attractions to lure the thrifty and hungry.

With the opera season at the Metropolitan waning, the season of spring opera is upon us. The Aborn company, who opened at Boston this week with sixty artists, chorus and ballet, from the Aborn itinerary are the Greater New York theatres, Baltimore, Brooklyn, Providence, Pittsburgh, Newark and Washington.

"A war of the Comstocks" is how the radio jests over the popularity of Edward Lock's "The Revolt" at the Marine Elliott theatre. F. Ray Comstock is producer, and Anthony Comstock of the "pure morals" squad, are believed to hold widely divergent views regarding the morality of "The Revolt."

TEMPORARY BUILDINGS USED AS WAR OFFICES IN ST. JAMES PARK.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

London April 24.—Along the peaceful green slopes of St. James's Park, which marks the center of fashionable life in London, there have sprung up almost overnight a host of temporary buildings, to be used as an emergency extension of the War Office. They will house a staff of a thousand clerks representing the Accounting Department.

So rapidly has the work of this section of the government grown that the huge War Building in Whitehall is badly overcrowded. Early in the war an extra story was built up on the roof to house part of the emergency staff.

The new buildings in the park are not jerry-built, although they have the appearance of mere shacks. They are solidly constructed, with foundation walls of brick four feet high, concrete floors, and walls of carefully selected timber, asbestos lined. The buildings are only temporary, of course, but provision was made when they were planned, for a war that might last several years.

CHAPTER XII.

A Mother's Broken Heart.

REGINALD entered the minister's house and apologized for his late visit. "I thought I would likely catch you at home at this time," he said in an apologetic tone, "and I wanted to see you alone." "What has happened now?" "I have learned some things today which make me feel that we must not think the millennium has come to Bronson yet," said the other, seating himself by the comfortable grate fire. "While a number of us were trying to serve God in Angles last night the devil was busy in Bronson." "It seems that every evil resort in Bronson has redoubled its efforts since the close of the tabernacle meetings," continued Reginald, gazing into the fire. "While we had Mr. Sunday with us I understand that the saloons and gambling dens and the other resorts were almost deserted. Many of the fellows who patronized these places were converted, and there is a determined effort being made to win the poor young converts back to the old life."

Allan Rutledge looked grave. "I had been planning an attack on the social institutions of iniquity, but I did not think we would need to be in a hurry." "That is just why I called tonight," said Reginald hastily. "I knew that you were planning to give a good deal of your time to evangelistic work in neighboring towns for a month or two. Excuse me for saying it, but I think it is a mistake. The iron is hot in Bronson now. Let us strike at once."

"What do you mean?" asked the minister, surprised to see the earnestness of the newspaper reporter. "Well," began Reginald, "last night some of the weaker converts were lured into a haunt of vice, filled with liquor and disgraced. One of them happened to be a young man from a respectable family, and in making his way home he got into the wrong house and awoke the neighborhood. That is how I happened to hear about it. The family came to the Courier office in awful distress, and they want us to say nothing about it."

"It is very plain, isn't it," said the minister, with a touch of bitterness in his voice, "that the devil is not dead, nor has he turned Christian?" "Mr. Marchmont was at first going to suppress the matter, but as he thought it over he felt assured that he would publish it if the offense had been committed by some one of no social standing, and he decided to treat this case exactly as he would any other. There is going to be quite a write-up in tomorrow's paper about the affair. I am sorry. It seems to show that Mr. Sunday's work was very superficial, but I know it was real." The young man spoke the words "I know" with emphasis.

Allan Rutledge sat in silence, and the two men gazed into the glowing fire. "I have been roused to action by the scorn of the enemy," said Reginald after a long pause. "I met Mr. McCrea this afternoon, and he leered in my face and asked me if I was going to tell all about the actions of some of Billy's converts."

"Did he dare to do that?" asked Allan Rutledge incredulously. "He made a mistake when he roused me as he did," responded the reporter. "I told him right then that I was convinced that even Gabriel himself would need flogging if he associated with some of the people of Bronson. I told him he could return to heaven."

"You are getting the Sundayesque was angry with McCrea," said the man, "but seriously, unless we can do something about these open sores in our town a large number of these converts will surely backslide. Let us begin action at once for the cleaning up of Bronson." "I have been regretting very much that our council did not come under the Sunday influence more," said the minister. "If only the mayor and a majority of the council had been converted we could have ousted these evil places in a week. That is what has happened in a number of Iowa towns after Mr. Sunday's meetings."

"McCrea knew that, and he used all his power with the city administration to keep them away from the tabernacle."

"Our present city administration represented very well the old Bronson, but they misrepresent the new Bronson," said Allan Rutledge. "But the trouble is," persisted Reginald, "that the old administration kept in power until next election, and I fear that by that time our newly recruited forces of righteousness will be sadly weakened by desertions unless we can arouse strong public sentiment against these open and protected evils. We must begin a fight for civic decency at once."

"What do you propose?" asked the minister, surprised to see the grasp of the situation shown by the young man. "I was reading in my Bible the other day," began the other, "and I turned to the book of Nehemiah. I like Nehemiah, somehow. He seems so modern and practical to me. When he came to Jerusalem to assist the people in rebuilding the ruined city the first thing he did was to arise by night and make a night circuit of the city. You remember the incident?"

Allan Rutledge nodded, and the city reporter of the Courier continued: "With a few friends Nehemiah went around valley gate, dung gate, the jackal's wall and viewed the broken down walls of the once proud city of Zion. After this investigation he called the people together, described the desolation of the city and cried, 'Let us arise and build.' I think we ought to imitate the ancient patriot."

"The Bible is a practical book to you, I see," remarked the minister, smiling. "This is a practical world," replied the other. "What do you think of my plan?"

"What exactly is your plan?" asked Allan Rutledge, becoming more earnest. "You have told me of the methods of Nehemiah, but Bronson is not broken down in exactly the same way as ancient Jerusalem."

"I want you and Mr. Townley to accompany me through Bronson in the night time. I will engage the services of a policeman, who, I know, will consent to guide us, and we will see things that are done under the cover of night in this city."

"What night do you propose to go on this scouting expedition?" inquired the other. "The sooner the better. Let it be tomorrow night. We can make the arrangements tomorrow. We will start from the Courier office at 11 o'clock."

"Will that not be a little late?" said Dr. Rutledge questioningly. "Bronson's underworld awakes when others sink to sleep," responded Reginald. "I have been making a complete sociological survey of our city for some time. This midnight tour will almost complete my investigations."

Allan Rutledge consented somewhat reluctantly to join in Reginald's expedition. "It will be a painful night for me," he said to himself, "but I remember reading in one of Spurgeon's sermons that it required the sight of iniquity sometimes to arouse us to proper activity in behalf of righteousness." Before the two friends separated Allan Rutledge asked Reginald what impelled him to take the interest he did in social and civic affairs.

"It seems strange to me to see a young man like you throw himself into a fight for the common weal as you are doing," said the minister.

"Do not give me any praise for it," replied the other. "Before I left England I felt this fire in my bones, and over there it meant grief and loss to me. I expect it may mean the same for me in the new world eventually, but I cannot help it. Unless I am engaged in some such fight life would lose all interest and zest for me."

"He is a strange kind of immigrant," said Allan Rutledge to himself as he returned to the room after bidding Reginald good night. "I am afraid he may find his pathway a little rough, as I did at first in Wellington."

It was night. The mantle of darkness covered the city of Bronson and invited every one to peaceful slumber and rest. But at the home of Allan Rutledge the minister and his wife sat together in the study wide awake.

"You had better go to bed, dear," the minister was saying. "There is absolutely no danger in this midnight tour of ours. We will have a policeman with us, and we shall do nothing except observe what is taking place in our city under sanction of our city's government."

"I am afraid that in these lawless places some one may hurt you, answered the wife, with an anxious look. "I don't like this excursion of yours."

"Well, dear, I didn't plan it, you know, but Mr. Nelson almost insisted that I should accompany him. Mr. Townley was anxious to go. He said today that he had been wishing to make a social survey of Bronson by night himself, and he was delighted with the opportunity."

"It may be all right, Allan, but some way I dread it," Mrs. Rutledge shuddered as she spoke.

Husband and wife kissed each other, and Allan Rutledge started out on his way to the Courier office.

The plans for the midnight tour of Bronson had been completed. Mr. Townley was enthusiastic and heartily joined in the enterprise. Mr. Marchmont was also in favor of the investigation.

"We need full and accurate information," he declared at a little conference which the investigators held in the afternoon, "before we can make any charges. We must inform the people exactly what the present city administration stands for, and after that, if you find the facts as they are vaguely reported, we will have no trouble in arousing a reform sentiment and in electing a reform administration at the fall election."

Mr. Marchmont refused to accompany them, however, pleading his advanced years as an excuse. "If I were as young as I used to be," he said smilingly, "I would not need a second invitation to join in such a needed investigation, no matter how repulsive it might be."

Accompanied by a policeman who was well versed in the doings of Bronson's night revelers, the party had agreed to start from the Courier office at 11 o'clock. The policeman had been secured by Reginald in some way, but he did not apprise his companions of the secret except to assure them that their guide would be a regular policeman of the city's force. "He will wear his star," said Reginald, explaining to the ministers about the policeman, "and he will be authorized legally to visit every place which we will enter tonight."

CHAPTER XIII.

A Midnight Tour.

EXERCISED with painful thoughts, the minister stepped into the Courier office. The others were awaiting his arrival, and in a few moments the little company set forth. The policeman-guide was a sturdy Irishman of powerful build. He carried the customary baton carried by officers and also had a revolver in his belt. His "star," showing his official authority, was hidden by the lapel of his coat, but he could display it in an instant by a slight motion of his left hand.

"We take the solemn first," said the policeman as they walked down the street, two by two, the officer and Reginald leading. "It is past the closing time, but we can enter readily by a rear door."

Choosing one of the prominent saloons, the police officer led the way to the rear door and knocked with three double taps. In a little while the door opened carefully. As soon as the door had swung back far enough the officer deftly placed his foot on the threshold and pushed it wide open.

"Who are you, sir?" exclaimed the astonished doorman. For answer the officer showed his star, and the man received him cordially. "Come in, sir; come in. These are some friends of yours, I suppose?" The saloon man pointed to the ministers and the city reporter of the Courier as he spoke.

"Yes," said the officer curiously. "We want to go into the room where the boys are."

Leading the way, the man took them through a dark room and, throwing open a door, ushered them into a room with a number of men sitting at little tables. On every table there were glasses and bottles.

A bartender with florid face, short, thick neck and adorned with a white apron hurried forward.

"Sit down, gentlemen," he said, bowing to the visitors. "What can we do for you tonight?"

The policeman pulled back his coat, showing his star, and remarked lustrely: "Oh, nothing. I am just taking a few friends around tonight to see our town."

The bartender looked closely at the men and recognized the ministers and Reginald. He started in astonishment and gaped open-mouthed at the intruders. Meanwhile Allan Rutledge had been scanning the faces in the room, and with a deep sorrow he saw that some of the young men were sons of members of his own church. Suddenly his eyes fell on Roland Gregory at a table in the corner of the room. Seeing that the visitors did not seat themselves, the attention of the revelers was soon centered on the party of investigators. The ministers and Reginald had removed their caps, which had been pulled down over their faces, and almost every one recognized them. There was a tense silence. The loud talking and laughing ceased. "I think that will be all," said Allan Rutledge, speaking to the officer. "We have seen all we care to in this place." He turned to go.

Roland Gregory staggered to his feet. He was plainly somewhat under the influence of liquor. "What do you fools want here?" he asked in a thick voice, adding a vile oath. The policeman was turning to leave the room, and Gregory walked up deliberately to

Children's Weekly Story

(By Paul Holmes.)

The Joy of Camping Out.
It was a dangerous performance. Slowly and silently, Winsor tiptoed along the floor. The cook might return at any moment. He gained the pantry by a sudden rush, and told Winsor that it was the cook, and he executed a flying leap toward the door.

"Winsor Thorngate! Yuh little rascal, come back here." But the person addressed seemed not to hear, for all the attention paid, and made good his escape with the booty in his possession. He ran past the barn, climbed a fence, crossed a potato field, mounted a low hill, and his destination was reached. Said destination was a point at the corner of Williamson's woods, where a small dog-tent had been pitched. This tent had been discovered by Harold in a remote part of his father's barn, and the boys had immediately conceived the idea of a camp. After some difficulty, the tent had been erected on the chosen site, and now they were enjoying the novelty to the fullest.

Winsor crawled into the tent, which was hardly high enough for him to comfortably sit up in, and deposited the cookies on the grass. Then he slowly ate one, regarding the canvas above him with a look of perfect content. A moment later, the flaps were thrown back, and Harold appeared. "Get anything?" inquired Winsor. "Yeah, I got that box of cherries, but I ran so fast coming back that I spilled some of them." See, and Harold produced a quart box of the ripe, delicious looking fruit.

"What'd you get?" "I got eight o' those big white cookies," answered Winsor, omitting to mention the one he had eaten. "Good. That's four apiece. How'd we divide the cherries? Shall we count 'em?"

"Aw, what's the use? We can get 'em pretty near even by puttin' 'em in piles."

"All right." In a moment, they were consuming the fruits of their foraging expedition.

"Gee," muttered Winsor, as he swallowed a cherry stone. "Wouldn't it be fun to sleep out here some night, though?" "You bet," echoed Harold. "You don't suppose we could, do you?" "I dunno. We might ask, but I bet you'd be afraid to stay out here, anyway."

"Fraid! Well, I guess not. You'd be 'fraid if anyone was." "I would not. But I don't suppose we could," I'm going to ask, though, anyway," he concluded in a more hopeful tone.

"Som' I. My, but 'twould be fun to tell the other kids about it. Wouldn't they wish they came, too?" "I should say so. Let's see home an' see, now," Winsor bit into his last cookie.

"I'm game," Mrs. Thorngate, busily sweeping the stairs, was surprised to see suddenly accosted with, "Mamma."

"Yes, Winsor. What is it?" "Well, you know Harold an' I've got a tent in the pasture," he sparred, uneasily.

"An—an—" plainly Winsor was dreading a refusal, "an' we'd sorta like to sleep out there tonight. 'Twouldn't do no harm, you know. There ain't no bears nor nothin' ag—"

"Why, I don't know Winsor. What kind of a place have you got out there?"

This tolerant attitude encouraged him. "It's a dandy," he assured her. "Just as nice and dry inside, and the tent won't leak, an' we could take that big red quilt to sleep on."

"I don't believe it would hurt you any," she mused. Winsor could have jumped for joy. "Still, you must build any fires, and if you feel the least bit cold, come home. I expect you'll get scared and come home anyway but then—"

"Huh! What'dyve think I am? A baby?" the boy cried indignantly. "You wait and see," she smiled. "Now, you had better take along three blankets. Are you sure Harold can't go?"

"I dunno. He just went to ask," was the reply. A short time later, however, the lad in question put in an appearance.

"Kin you go, Win?" he cried breathlessly. "My ma said I could if I'd be careful and not get scared."

"Whoop!" shouted Winsor. "I can go too. Can't we take a lunch along, mamma?" "T'would be so much better to eat breakfast there, too."

"I guess so," was the reply. Winsor was surprised at all his demands. "You take the blankets up, now, while I put up the breakfast. Then I'll go out and see what kind of a sleeping place you've got."

"All right," they cried, in unison, as they dashed for the stairs, reappearing a moment later, draped in the straight for the camp, where, after some damage to their burdens, they soon arrived. Harold arranged a bed inside of the tent, and then lay down upon it.

"Would it be swell," he murmured.

"Swell!" Winsor echoed. "Well I should say so. I wish my ma'd hurry up." "She won't be here for a long time," said Harold. "Let's play 'till 'till she comes."

"I'm game," Winsor agreed. They were enjoying themselves in that way, when Mrs. Thorngate came upon them. "Here's your grub, boys," she cried laughingly. "Well, I must say, it's quite a neat place out here."

"But you haven't got the bed made right here," and she began to rearrange the clothes.

"Thanks," said Winsor, when she emerged. "That lunch looks awful good."

"It's as good as it looks," she told him. "Well, good bye boys. I don't expect to see you until nine o'clock tonight."

"Fool!" You won't see us till school time, tomorrow," Winsor corrected.

"Oh, we'll see," she laughed, and was gone.

They had a fine time for awhile, and then they thought it was time to eat, so the package was opened and half of its contents was instantly devoured.

"We'll have to save the rest," said Winsor. Accordingly they tied up what remained and put the bundle in the tent.

After supper, they attempted to re-new their game, but it lacked its former spirit and was soon abandoned. At last, they both took seats in front of the tent. Beyond the distant mills, he sun was slowly sinking.

"What'll we do now?" questioned Winsor.

"I dunno," Harold replied. "What time is it?"

Winsor had a small watch in his pocket which he now consulted. "It's eight o'clock," he answered. "We'd be in bed if we was home. Ain't you glad we're not?"

"Y-es," said Harold slowly. The sun had almost vanished. The sun had almost vanished. The sun had almost vanished.

Harold readily agreed, and they crawled under the flaps. The interior seemed strangely cold and dark. Outside the stars were appearing.

"Shall we undress now?" "Aw, what's the use?" Harold seemed ill at ease.

"You ain't afraid, are you?" Winsor scooped.

"Afraid? I guess not." But the statement was far from convincing. They were silent for a time, and then Winsor cried, "Did you hear that noise?"

"What noise?" "That one a minute ago."

"No, but—What was that?" "Nothing. I guess you're scared."

"I am not, but—" "Can hear something right outside."

I was too much for Harold. "Gee," he burst out, "I forgot to fill the wood box at home. I guess I'll go and do it."

"Aw, gwan! You can do it in the morning." "No, I can't. My ma'd be awful sore if I wasn't done. I better go do it. I'll be back."

"Honest?" And then Winsor was left alone. Hardly had Harold's retreating footsteps died away than Winsor's terror gripped the best of him. He dashed from the tent, and fairly flew along the homeward path.

It seemed that an unseen, shapeless thing was pursuing him. Madly he reached the Thorngate residence, and tore open the door. Winsor, what are you doin' here? It was his mother's voice.

"Nothing." The boy suddenly remembered her predictions, and stared, red-faced at the floor.

"You yeren't frightened away, were you?" she asked, gently. "Aw, Gee! Gourse not." And Winsor relapsed into a moody silence.

Co-Operative Spirit Growing in Rock Co.

spirit growing in Rock county. During the past winter and this spring, there have been some very interesting meetings held in Rock county, which bespeak a greater community interest in several of the rural districts of the county.

The meeting arranged by the Rock Prairie Y. M. C. A., the picture of which appears above, shows from the attendance that farmers are vitally interested in their community questions and are willing to come together to discuss these questions. This meeting, at which 93 men were present, was the largest of any held in the county, but no more interesting than the ones arranged by the Y. M. C. A. groups at Fulton and Bergen.

At Fulton, about 80 were present and through the meeting the men were inspired to a greater interest in their Y. M. C. A.

lan community, there were 75 present and through the illustrated lecture given by Mr. Hubbel of Milwaukee, they learned many ways in which they can help make a better community both socially and economically.

These meetings are examples of what is bound to come in every part of Rock county, and when that time arrives, Rock county will lead the men in the type of men which will be developed in its rural districts.

Orfordville News

Orfordville, April 23.—G. Clemetson has been in Janesville for the past two days in attendance upon the meeting of the county board.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Dixon spent Sunday in Janesville.

Ed Myhre, who has been spending the winter in Mexico, with his family, returned to Orfordville on Thursday evening.

They report that Wisconsin looks pretty good to them. Mr. Myhre's health has not improved as much as he hoped.

A carload of cheese box lumber was received at the local yards on Thursday and was divided among the outlying cheese factories.

The shipment was consigned to Roderick and Son of Broadhead.

K. N. Grunhuud has just completed the loading of a car of ear corn for shipment to parties near New Glarus.

This is the second ear Grunhuud has sold in the past few weeks.

The warm weather has made those with piscatorial inclinations years for foreign parties with hook and line may be seen at almost any hour of the day leaving the village in search of sport.

Word was received on Thursday that Dr. Stetson, who died suddenly at his home in Roswell, New Mexico. The doctor was an Orfordville boy and lived in the village for many years.

After completing his medical education he practiced his profession for several years in Lima, and later in Beloit. He was a brother of Mrs. A. F. Smiley of this place, who died a little more than a year ago.

WILD ANIMAL MARKET SHUT-OFF SINCE WAR FROM GERMAN MARKETS.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] London, April 24.—Baboons, seals, lions, alligators, polar bears and smaller animals have generally doubled in price since the war began, according to London dealers.

If the has not succeeded in reducing England to actual hardship as far as food supplies go, it has certainly played havoc with the stocks of live seals, grizzlies, skunks, and other foreign furbings in fur and feather that inhabit the public zoos of the big cities.

The scarcity in animals, it is explained, is due to the fact that none are coming from Germany, which up to last autumn, had made herself the international clearing house and general distributing center of wild livestock for the whole of Europe.

In this trade, she had an advantage in geographical situation which enabled her to supply with equal ease purchasers in Russia, Italy, Austria, France or England. The German banks, also, have always been liberal in financing the big animal dealers, while in England, it has sometimes been almost impossible for men in this branch of trade to obtain any considerable advances on their stock in trade.

The United States, it is said, has of late years been the best customer for wild animals. The number of monkeys alone, sent to America in the course of a year, has generally exceeded 4,000. English dealers are making elaborate plans for permanently annexing a large share of the German trade in animals.

On a Diet. "What did the doctor say?" "Same old stuff. Told me not to eat anything good to eat or drink anything good to drink."

FORTY YEARS AGO

The Janesville Daily Gazette, April 24, 1875.—Burned to Death: The home of William Baxter, on Chatham street in the first ward, was discovered on fire early this morning by a neighbor.

And in the ruins were discovered the charred remains of the occupant, who was over seventy years of age and had lived alone for a long time.

The meeting at the high school of all the teachers of the schools of our city, together with the school commissioners, was quite a social affair. The teachers and the board plan many more of these get-together parties for co-operation in the future.

The fire department will probably be paid off in time to go to the circus. The common council acted wisely last evening in conferring the presidency of that body on J. A. Blount.

Mr. Blount is a careful, practical and industrious alderman and has the confidence and unbounded respect of our citizens. He labors indefatigably for the best interests of the city, is always at his post and never fails to render the city a good service.

CITY SCHOOL HEAD IS ENTITLED TO PENSION BUT FOR COUNTY SUPT.

Madison, Wis., April 24.—In an opinion to State Superintendent C. P. Cary, Attorney General Owen holds that a city superintendent of schools comes under the teachers' insurance and retirement fund law, but that a county superintendent does not. The former is held to be considered as a teacher, while the latter is a elective officer.

To District Attorney W. C. Zabel of Milwaukee the attorney general rendered an opinion that the law provides that the industrial commission may call upon the attorney general to prosecute violations of the statute on the manufacture and labeling of mattresses does not restrict the power of the district attorney in such cases.

District Attorney Sam Blum of Green County was advised in another ruling that candidates for town officers must file expense accounts, and that this obligation does not end until all expenses have been accounted for.

EAU CLAIRE COUNTY STOCK FARMERS ARE STRIVING FOR RECORDS.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Eau Claire, Wis., April 24.—Eau Claire county stock farmers are striving to make their county the foremost stock community in the state. A census shows that 2,081 out of 2,168 farms in this county report live stock raising as one of their principal industries. The estimated value of domestic animals in the county is $1,800,000.

Seventy-four per cent of the total land area of the county is in farms. Freeholders operate 89 per cent of these farms, and 94 are free from mortgages. The livestock interests of the county are well organized and equipped. Special efforts are being made to attract buyers of pure bred dairy cattle. Sixty-seven per cent of the stallions in the county are pure bred. The ratio is 40 pure bred to 16 grade to three mongrels. The hog industry is keeping a pace with that of surrounding counties. The present value of the hog population is $200,000. A 2 per cent loss from high cholera is reported but remedial measures are expected to cut this down.

221-223 East Milwaukee Street.

Are you perfectly satisfied?
Sometimes dissatisfaction is an asset.

It took Duke C. Bowers out of the rut he found himself in fifteen years ago, when he was piling staves in a barrel factory, for $18 per week, and caused him to go into business for himself.

Newspaper advertising did the rest. He tells elsewhere in this issue how he has built up a $2,000,000 yearly grocery business entirely through newspaper advertising.

The same opportunity is open to YOU.

Newspaper advertising will do as much for YOU as it did for him. It is just as effective in YOUR line of work as it is in the grocery business.

RIDES WITH DEATH

Bearer of War Dispatches in Constant Peril.

Letter From French Soldier Relates Narrow Escapes of Friend Who Makes Frequent Trips to the Trenches.

New York.—The danger undergone by a messenger carrying dispatches from the war office to the front is told in a letter received by Robert Stovold of this city from his brother in the French army. The letter says, in part: "George and the duke are also in the army now as interpreters. They are with General French and the English army all of the time. Harry is engaged to take officers with dispatches from the war office to the front three and four times a week. He sees George often.

"Three times a week George has to take dispatches up to the firing line. This is a pretty risky job and he has had several narrow escapes. Once he had to jump out of his automobile and lie down for several hours while shells and bullets went whistling by over him. Another time as he was driving along with his automobile some Germans hiding in the woods fired at him. Fortunately they missed him, but several of the bullets struck the automobile.

"Another time a shell burst twenty yards from him, but by a miracle he was not touched. He was enveloped in smoke, however, the fumes of the shell making him feel sick and giddy. George, however, seems to think it great sport.

"Harry Colliard in the trenches also has been in some of the thickest of the fighting. He is fighting there day and night. Although he has been in many of the bayonet charges, he has so far escaped unscathed. Let's hope it will always be thus. Bob's brother has not been so fortunate. He was wounded in the head by shrapnel and picked up on the battlefield insensible. He found himself in the hospital when he recovered. He is nearly well now, though, and hopes to return soon to have another smack at those Germans.

"What a terrible war this is, Bob. Several of my very dear friends have been killed, a few others wounded and one is now a prisoner in Germany. If it were not for the wonderful fighting of the English we would have suffered more. But by the time you get this letter you will be reading that the Germans are in full retreat."

After relating the sufferings of the wounded and the hardships undergone the writer closes with the words, "I should just like to have the job of shooting that Kaiser."

SAYS ONE LEG IS BAROMETER

But She Doesn't Like It, and is Suing the City of Cleveland for Damages.

Cleveland.—It's no joke to have one good leg and another that persists in acting as a barometer. So declares Mrs. Hattie Felber, who is suing the city for $10,000 damages.

She also objects to having to wear shoes two sizes larger than she has been accustomed to wear and to have to forego dancing. In her petition she charges that as she alighted from a street car she stepped into a hole in the street and so injured one of her legs that the foot swelled permanently.

"In damp and cloudy weather my leg acts as a sort of barometer," she said. "I can tell by the pain whether it will be clear or not."

MISS ALICE GERSTENBERG

One of the youthful and extremely promising novelists and dramatists is Miss Alice Gerstenberg. After spending three years at Bryn Mawr college she decided that she wanted some "real work," as she sincerely put it, and launched into the literary field. As an author Miss Gerstenberg is not unknown to the American public, her "Unquenched Fire" and "The Conscience of Sarah Platt" having been favorably received.

In the dramatic field Miss Gerstenberg is known to the theatergoers by her "Alice in Wonderland" and the "Model Maid."

With all these activities in the literary field Miss Gerstenberg finds time to belong to many clubs in her home city, Chicago. Still she is the most modest and unassuming little person in the world.

Obeying Regulations.

Little Bessie went to the park with grandpa. She was passionately fond of flowers, and grandpa lifted her up to see the pretty flowers in the urn. A policeman came along and said: "You mustn't pick the flowers, little girl," to which she gravely replied: "I can't pick 'em; I only 'meil 'em."

GET RID OF HUMORS

Hood's Sarsaparilla is the Medicine to Take—Makes Pure Blood.

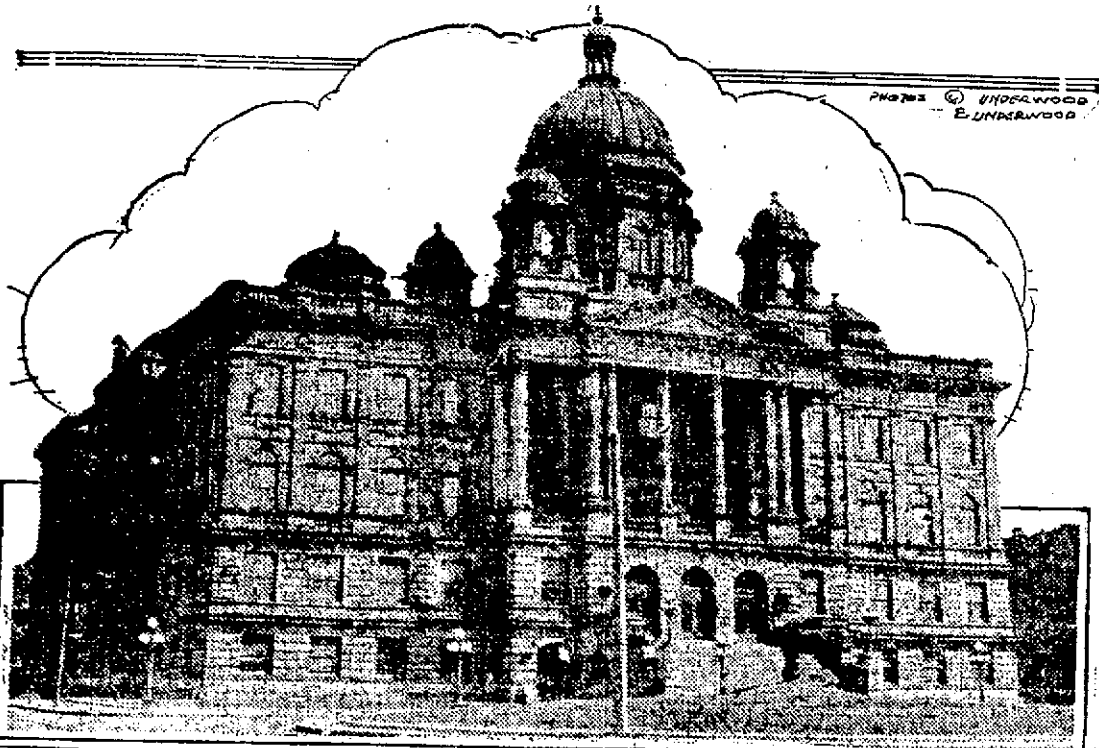

Dry, moist, scaly, itchy, pimples, boils, and other eruptions come from humors, which may be either inherited, or acquired through defective digestion and assimilation.

To treat these eruptions with drying medicines is dangerous. Hood's Sarsaparilla, the old reliable medicine, helps the system to discharge the humors, and improves the digestion and assimilation.

Get Hood's Sarsaparilla from your druggist. It may be confidently relied upon to do its work. It purifies the blood, tones the stomach, and builds up the whole system. It goes to the roots of disease, and its beneficial results are permanent. It sets things to rights in the system. Remember to ask for Hood's Sarsaparilla, because nothing else acts like it and nothing else can take its place.

Court-house at Syracuse where Barnes-Roosevelt trial is taking place; Roosevelt's attorneys in conference at Syracuse, left to right, Oliver D. Burden, William H. Van Benschoten, Stewart F. Hancock.

Political history is in the making at Syracuse, where the famous $50,000 libel suit of William F. Barnes against Col. Theodore Roosevelt is taking place. Sensational revelations are expected, as Mr. Roosevelt will endeavor to leave no stone unturned to prove that Barnes is a political boss, and has conspired with Murphy of Tammany Hall to give New York state bad government during the past fifteen years. Mr. Barnes is confident of his ability to prove that he is not a boss, but an honest and upright political leader.

AUSTRIAN BAR IN PROTEST

Object to Restraining Refugee Lawyers of Galicia and Bukovina From Practicing.

Vienna.—A committee of the Austrian Bar association has recently drawn up a vigorous protest against the enactments of the government restraining the refugee lawyers of Galicia and Bukovina from the practice of their profession in lower Austria. The representations of the committee, which has behind it not only the prominent lawyers of Vienna, but of all the Austrian crownlands, received instant and hearty endorsement from the bar. The Austrian Bar association repudiated all sympathy with the illiberal policy of the state authorities, and by a three-quarters vote of its members, put itself on record against the proceedings disbarring its colleagues from Galicia and Bukovina. Public opinion, too, keenly alive to the fact that the government is imposing disabilities on a part of its population which is suffering for its sake, is in emphatic accord with the stand of the lawyer's committee.

"SOLOMON" ENDS BABY CASE

This Time in Person of New York Lawyer—He Foregoes the Sword.

New York.—May a child be held for board unpaid?

The question was asked of Magistrate Barlow, when Mrs. May Berghard, whose baby was born last August, summoned to court Mrs. Minnie Curtis because she had refused to give up the child until Mrs. Berghard paid $10 arrears of board for the baby.

On consulting the court Bible, Magistrate Barlow, in emulation of King Solomon in a similar case, glanced about for the state sword which should have been behind his chair. The court stenographer had taken it away to sharpen his pencil, and in default of anything bigger than a paper cutter Magistrate Barlow threw biblical instructions to the winds, and gave the child back to its mother.

Raw Cabbage to Aid Digestion. Raw cabbage, eaten without any dressing or with salt, olive oil and lemon juice, is recommended by many physicians, as an aid to digestion. If the cabbage is cut in thin strips and laid in very cold, slightly salted water for a few minutes before serving it will be crispier and of better flavor.

High Grade Service Recognized and Appreciated

Growing Business Tells the Tale of Why This Service is Appreciated by Golden Eagle Patrons.

This big new store is already recognized as the leading high grade service store in Southern Wisconsin; not only for excellent quality for price; not only for authoritative style; not only for our great wealth of assortment; something beyond these.

THE REST ROOM AND BUBBLE FOUNTAIN ARE USED BY A GREAT MANY PEOPLE DAILY.

Courteous personal service, with the single aim, always of first importance to us, of making this store a satisfaction center; your store, as you like it; to give you what you want as you want it, to give your money back if you want it.

Our children's department is a most interesting place. Mothers of young girls find here the things they want and are surprised at the lowness of the price.

One of our men patrons said the other day, "I deal here regularly because I can always count in finding the patterns and qualities I like." Hundreds of men think the same way about it.

The shoe department shows everything in footwear—in both novelty and staple forms—built on perfect form-fitting foot-form lasts, in a range of sizes and widths to fit every foot and at prices to suit everybody.

The pattern department is a busy place every day. Women have learned that Butterick patterns are best and many of them enjoy reading the Delineator magazine which may be obtained at this counter.

Our windows come in for their share of compliments both from Janesville folks and visitors from far away. Have you seen the latest displays? You'll always see the newest things first in The Golden Eagle windows.

How Beautiful Flowers Are Grown and the Care Necessary In Their Preparation

An Interesting Industry Which "Belongs To Janesville" and Contributes to the Happiness of the Community By Furnishing Beautiful Perfect Flowers

Not very long ago just "flowers" was an expensive luxury—perfect greenhouse flowers unknown. Our parents either gathered wild flowers in the mossy woods or, at considerable trouble, obtained the costly product of the private hot house in imperfectly grown and few varieties. These had to be first arranged into "home-made" designs to express the sentiment of the sender, whose gift of flowers was—and is today—the most exquisite expression of regard or sympathy.

How different are conditions today. You phone the Flower Shop and your order is promptly filled with just the finest, freshest, most reasonable flowers of The Flower Shop's own selection—artistically arranged by experienced florists, colorists of good taste, who will design charming color combinations for every purpose or occasion required.

The many special combinations of flowers which may be obtained at The Flower Shop fill a long felt want—affording an inexpensive opportunity to everyone to enjoy the feeling of satisfaction that follows the sending of beautiful flowers to a sick friend, or to wife, mother or sweetheart—or it is "not how much, but how expressive" the gift that brings joy to the heart of its recipient.

Acres and acres of plant life have yielded the scientifically grown flowers. A glass-roofed city of tender plants, housed under thousands of feet of glass and more acres of hardy field-grown plants, insure an all-year-round of blooming plants. Numbers of expert laborers have planted the seeds and cuttings, tilled the soil and growing plants, cut the blooms and arranged them most artistically, and pack them to your order for instant delivery anywhere in Janesville or will be Parcel Post to any address. Being members of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association, The Flower Shop can send flowers by wire or mail to all parts of the world.

Fifteen years of expert preparation of soil and scientific horticultural knowledge plus tireless energy of twenty-five interested employees who work with trained hands and brains, and a vision of a great new industry which will belong to Janesville, have all assisted in the growing of the choicest plants and flowers and bringing the blossomed product to The Flower Shop, where the real art of arrangement into artistic design begins.

There the condition and color of every cut and bloom must pass the expert eye of The Flower Shop florists. Every "bundle of fragrance" that goes into a box, every bouquet or set piece designed for funerals or less somber, but impressive occasions, must pass the critical eye and hand and brain and heart of experienced men and women florists, until the sweetest, most charming and expressive combination of bloom and color and fragrance blossoms forth in artistic design. No wilted flower or withered bit of green lacy for trimming must go in any Flower Shop bundle. Meticulous care must be given every bundle to insure its delivery in good order—fresh, fragrant and ready to grace the occasion for which it was designed.

An Invitation.

A courteous invitation is extended by Mr. Amerpohl to visit the greenhouses at any time. It will be a pleasant drive or an inviting place to go for a short walk. The cut flower houses are situated on Jackson St., and the plant houses on S. Main St., the ornamental nursery on Racine street, the office and Flower Shop at 50 S. Main St.

The Amerpohl Fern.

Part of this industry which "Belongs to Janesville" is the distribution of the famous Nephrolepis Fern introduced in 1907 by Mr. Amerpohl. The plant is considered the finest among the fern family and has been sent through the Flower Shop to every part of the world. It thrives particularly well in the tropical countries, but grows well anywhere. The Amerpohl Fern may be distinguished from others by its beautiful fronds which closely resemble a piece of rare, old lace in many localities it is known as the "lace fern."

Plants and Bedding Stock.

One wonders how it is possible to classify and handle the thousands of different kinds of plants and bedding stock that must be looked after. There are literally thousands of plants, vines and bedding stock covering the widest range. But it all goes along like clockwork, so perfect is the organization.

Landscape Department.

It is but recently that landscape work has been introduced into the West and The Flower Shop was the first to take it up and establish a complete department for landscape service, which is completely described in an advertisement on this page.

Landscape Service FOR Property Owners.

You Would Be Surprised To See How Few Plants and Shrubs It Takes When They Are Properly Placed To Make a Magnificent Lawn, Yard and Grounds.

Let's Make Janesville The City Beautiful

Very few people appreciate what correct landscape gardening means. It is comparatively new in this part of the country. Landscape architecture is a study. It is a great art, and the men who are expert in this particular line, in the east, charge as high as $100 per day for their services.

It is just as particular, if not more so, to have the plans of your grounds well laid-out as the plans of the house that goes on the grounds. One is just as essential as the other. Many a man has started to make his home grounds beautiful; has gone ahead and bought expensive trees and shrubs of all kinds and because he did not have a knowledge of the particular characteristics of the trees and shrubs he bought, and how to place them, he spoiled his entire premises. Many a man has spent three or four times the cost of a correct landscape design and planting for trees and shrubs that did not make his place look right at all.

No ordinary man can lay out his own place and make perfect premises any more than an ordinary man can sit down and administer the right kind of medicine to himself when he is sick, because it is a business all by itself.

The landscape architect will tell you where to plant them. He knows which ones are hardy in this locality. He knows what color each tree is when it is in foliage and in full bloom and also the height of the different shrubs and plants.

Our Landscape Department will plan and plant your place with shrubbery, trees and flowers for less money than you can get it done elsewhere, or cheaper than if you did it haphazard yourself according to your own idea, because nobody can do this work unless they have put in years of study on it. If you wish to have this proven go down east where every modern place is laid out by a landscape architect. You will find they are just as particular in the east about plans of the landscape as they are about the plans of their houses. And remember that they do not have the soil like we have.

Wisconsin is an agricultural state. It grows all the things, necessary to correct landscape work, to perfection. Why not let us have something in Janesville that is significant of our greatest industry, agriculture? We have the soil, we can do the work and if you will but express the desire we will be glad to give you facts and figures. You'll be surprised at the smallness of the cost.
